Comment: During the year 1918 the company fully maintained its earning power and reported approximately the same surplus available for dividends as in the previous year. The financial statement of the company reflects a stable situation and the investment standing of the stock issue has therefore been fully maintained. During the past two years the company has been paying extra dividends of 2% in addition to the regular 6% rate.

Comment: During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1919, the net revenue of this property declined rather sharply as compared with the previous year, but averaged well above the figures of most prior years. The company followed a policy of greatly increasing its depreciation charges, and therefore the surplus available for dividends was only about half that reported during 1918. This surplus, however, was of sufficient amount to fully cover the preferred dividend and also the increased payment on the enlarged amount of common stock. During the year the bonded debt of the company was further reduced through sinking fund retirements and conversion into the stocks of the company, cover the preferred dividend and also the increased payment on the enlarged amount of common stock. During the year the bonded debt of the company was further reduced through sinking fund retirements and conversion into the stocks of the company.

Note: Average income available on stock issues is the average surplus, after deducting all fixed and other charges, for last five years shown in income account. Dividend requirement on common stock is the requirement at the rate of 8% on the present amount outstanding. For key to ratings, see pages 11 to 18.

REFERENCE NOTES ON STOCK ISSUES:

1. Authorized, $50,000,000 6% cumulative preferred (increased from $32,000,000 on March 28, 1912); par, $100. A sufficient amount of the preferred stock is set aside to provide for the conversion of the first 5s of 1928. Preferred stock has preference as to 6% cumulative dividends and assets but has no preference with reference to voting. Dividends on preferred stock have been regularly paid from October, 1899, to date, payments to and including October 15, 1911, being semi-annual and subsequent payments quarterly.

2. Authorized, $50,000,000 common stock (increased from $20,000,000 on March 28, 1912); par, $100. Initial quarterly dividend of 1% paid on common Jan. 15, 1912, which rate was maintained to Oct., 1916, when rate was increased to 1½%; increased to 1½% in Oct., 1917, and again increased to 2% in Oct., 1918, making 8% per annum, this rate being continued in 1919.

Transfer Agents: C. P. Leggett, 2 Rector Street, New York, and Old Colony Trust Co., Boston. Stocks listed on New York and Boston Stock Exchanges.

THE AMERICAN BRASS COMPANY

History: Incorporated in February, 1899, in Connecticut, to manufacture and deal in brass, copper and kindred metals; charter approved in June, 1893. On January 1, 1912, acquired the assets of the Ansonia Brass & Copper Company, the Benedict & Burnham Manufacturing Company, of Waterbury, Conn., the Waterbury Brass Company, the Coe Brass Manufacturing Company of Torrington and Ansonia, Conn., the Chicago Brass Company of Kenosha, Wis., and the Holmes, Booth & Haydens Company of Waterbury, Conn., all formerly controlled through ownership of stock. The Ansonia Land & Water Power Company, the Waterbury Brass Goods Corporation and the American Metal Hose Company will, for the present, be operated as independent corporations. The company largely controls the output of brass in this country, and is one of the largest consumers of copper in the United States.

Note: A sum of $5,000,000 in 1917 and $1,500,000 in 1918 was set up as a reserve for taxes and is deducted from the net for those years. Earned on stock is based on amount outstanding at close of year.

Comment: This company, which went through a period of abnormal prosperity during the war, is now reporting much lower revenues than for some years past. The income for 1919 was, however, far above the figures shown prior to 1915 and was amply sufficient to cover the dividend requirements of the year. The company has for some years past paid a regular 6% dividend with extra payments of varying amounts. The financial statement indicates a very strong credit position.
